FRIDAY, AUGUST 24, 1855.

THE GOOD TIMES—ADVERTISING—The Louisville Journal.—The productions of the earth have never been more abundant than during the present season. Last year the crops were almost entirely cut off; in consequence of which great distress was felt, and bankruptcy threatened almost the whole country. It is astonishing that our merchants bore up so successfully under such heavy adversity. Very few of them succumbed, and these but temporarily.

A bright prospect is now before our merchants, for undoubtedly the trade during the approaching fall will be better than it has been for many years. We are credibly informed that an unusually large stock of goods will be offered by them for sale, and that the strongest inducements will be held out to responsible customers. Persons throughout the West and South desirous of making purchases cannot possibly do better than to make application here.

And now a word or two for ourselves. Never before was there a time in all the twenty-five years of the life of the Louisville Journal when it had so large a circulation, weekly, tri-weekly, or daily, as it has now. Never before was there a time when it had so large an aggregate circulation by many thousands. In the old and fierce contests of the Whig and Democratic parties, its circulation far surpassed that of any other paper in the Western country, but even then it fell very much short of what it is now. Since the 1st of last month our weekly subscription list has increased more than three thousand five hundred, our daily more than one thousand four hundred, and our tri-weekly—we know not how much. Our daily accessions now are very rarely less than one hundred and fifty; and we have the strongest assurance that our increase during the next month will be not less than four thousand. Our daily and tri-weekly issues are largely circulated throughout the West, particularly in Kentucky, Indiana, and Tennessee, and the weekly is read by thousands in every section of the West and Southwest from Minnesota to Louisiana. Each of our issues very greatly surpasses that of any other paper in this part of the country.

The N. Y. Journal of Commerce, of Friday evening, says:

The dividend now payable on the New York Central, is the largest ever paid for a single corporation since our recollection. The transfer office in the banking house of Messrs. Duncan, Sherman, & Co., is thronged by the holders of coupons, and those seeking to transfer the stock. The amount paid out by them will be about $700,000.

The N. Y. Tribune of the same date has the following:

We understand that the general assignee of Messrs. Page, Bacon, & Co. is offering to arrange the affairs of that house upon which nothing has yet been paid by a payment of 20 per cent. in cash, and 80 per cent in the notes of the house, at eighteen months. In some cases this has been accepted.

A SUGGESTION.—We find the following in the Baltimore Sun:

An American city like Louisville, of some seventy thousand inhabitants, without a single military corps in regular organization. It is at variance with all idea of the American character.

We know very well, that, notwithstanding the almost entire absence of any volunteer military companies in our city, there are hundreds and thousands of our best and bravest citizens willing and anxious to tender their services; but it is a matter of no little surprise that the "Legion," a corps provided with a very favorable charter and offering many inducements for the formation of volunteer companies, is allowed to languish as it does. There are many young men in our midst who need only the suggestion to set themselves to work to fill up the rank and file of the Louisville Legion. Indeed we have understood that a movement to this effect has already been commenced.

For some months past the Free Soil and anti-slavery papers have been circulating the following paragraph, asserting that it contains a sentiment once uttered by Kentucky's greatest statesman, Henry Clay. It purports to be in the language used by him:

I repeat it, sir, I never can and never will, and no earthly power will make me vote directly or indirectly to spread slavery over any territory where it does not exist. Never while reason has a seat in my brain—never, while my heart sends the vital fluid through my brain—never.

We do not believe that Henry Clay ever used such language or ever uttered such a sentiment. We have carefully examined all the published speeches and addresses of that great man, and have industriously inquired of those who would probably remember if he had ever expressed himself in this manner, but we have been unable to find any authority for attributing to him expressions so inconsistent with all his acts and opinions either recorded or remembered.

BORING THE HOOSAC MOUNTAIN.—The Boston Journal says the firm of Edward W. Serrel & Co., the new contractors on the Troy and Greenfield Railroad, are pushing their work with much spirit. They "have by no means abandoned the idea of using mechanism on the main tunnel, but have a machine in progress at the Novelty Works in New York, of an improved construction, designed to open a drift way of eight feet in diameter in advance of the tunnel. The diminished size will render it more manageable than the larger machine, and the workers who follow it can easily enlarge the aperture, by splitting out the strata of slate, which are nearly perpendicular." A force of about 500 men are distributed along the line of work, and more are advertised for.

The N. Y. Journal of Commerce, of Friday evening, says:

The dividend now payable on the New York Central, is the largest ever paid for a single corporation since our recollection. The transfer office in the banking house of Messrs. Duncan, Sherman, & Co., is thronged by the holders of coupons, and those seeking to transfer the stock. The amount paid out by them will be about $700,000.

[From this morning's Journal.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.

The Washington Union of this morning announces that President Pierce has had an attack of the chills and fever similar to that he suffered last year.

NORFOLK, Aug. 22, M.

During the last twenty-four hours 15 deaths from yellow fever occurred in the city, and 5 at the hospitals.

In the same time there were 20 deaths in the city of Portsmouth. George Chambers is dead. Commander Barron and Drs. Schofield and Parker are out of danger.

INDIANAPOLIS Aug. 23.

The Train on the Indiana Central R. R., due here last night at 8 o'clock, P. M., run over a cow 25 miles east of here, precipitating two passenger cars down a bank 15 feet. Several persons were considerably hurt but none fatally.

NASHVILLE, Aug. 22.

The extensive paper mills of W. C. White, situated nine miles from this city were entirely destroyed by fire yesterday morning. Loss $42,000. Insured $14,000. Mr. White will immediately rebuild on a much larger scale.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.

The mayor and city council of Rochester will visit this city on Monday next and will be entertained as guests of the city.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.

Alexander H. Pettie was arrested to-day charged with a conspiracy to run the steamer G. W. P. Curtis on a passage from Washington to New York, with a view to defraud the Insurance offices.

The city authorities have contracted with A. B. Latta & Co. to build four steam fire engines to be built immediately. When these engines are finished, all the hand engines are to be dispensed with, and the department will be composed entirely of steam fire engines.

Cin. Gazette.

The Kinney Expedition.—Seventy-eight men, enlisted for the Kinney expedition, will leave this city this morning for New York, under command of a captain. They were principally enlisted in St. Louis, and are said to be young men far superior to those who would naturally be gathered for such an enterprise. We learn that they will sail as soon as they arrive upon the seaboard.—Chicago Tribune.

One of them was arrested.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river had only fallen an inch in the twenty-four hours ending last evening. There were 5 feet 7 inches water in the canal. We had a slight fall of rain early yesterday morning, and during the day the weather was cloudy.

The Cumberland was falling on Tuesday with 4 feet water on the shoals.

The Rainbow is the packet for Henderson this evening. She starts punctually at the hour advertised. Her accommodations as well as her fare are unexceptionable, her speed is great, and her officers are well known for their uniform courtesy. We are indebted to her for a copy of the manifest.

The little steamer Gaz 1, formerly belonging to Van Amburg's Menagerie, came down from Cincinnati yesterday morning, and went over the falls. She has been purchased by Capt. Lyon who will run her as a regular packet between Evansville and Henderson.

A new sternwheeler built at Ironton, also came down the river and departed for the Arkansas, for which river she was built.

The Submarine, No. 6, is at work on the wreck of the Kentucky Home, and has removed 100 kegs of nails and about 15 tons of dry goods from it. The freight has been forwarded to Cincinnati.

The boiler of the new steamer Home has passed inspection at Cincinnati.

The Fanny Bullitt is due from New Orleans this evening.

The following we find in the Cincinnati Commercial of yesterday:

Opinions of the Steamboat Inspectors in the Case of the Collision between the Steamer Telegraph No. 3 and Kentucky Home.—Messrs. Halldeman and Guthrie, local inspectors, have addressed a letter to S. B. W. McLean, Esq., collector of customs for this city, embodying an account of the testimony taken in the matter of the collision between the steamers Telegraph No. 3 and Kentucky Home, on the night of the 30th July, in which five persons were killed or missing, and giving their opinion and decision in the case. The inspectors entered into the investigation of this matter without complaint from either party, the pilots of each boat declining to charge those on the other with neglect of duty or unskillfulness. They have examined sixty witnesses, have visited the place of accident, and have given the whole affair the most patient and thorough investigation possible, for which laborious action they merit the gratitude of the public. It is evident that they have made the protracted examination into the facts of the case, which was requisite to a clear understanding of all the circumstances, with the most assiduous energy and conscientious purpose. It appears that the cause of the accident was a misunderstanding in the signals, but the pilot rules do not justify a pilot in following a wrong signal. The opinion and decision which is voluminous, but with few if any superfluous words, concludes as follows:

It may not be out of place here to urge upon masters and owners of steamers the necessity of having a person constantly on the watch—men who are capable of noticing promptly any change in the position of the boat they are meeting. In nearly every case of collision coming before us, there was no one on the look-out on one boat or the other to assist the pilots. In some instances we have known both boats to be without the watch on deck. In the present case there was no one on the hurricane deck of the steamer Telegraph No. 3 to assist the pilot. The captain of the Kentucky Home was on the hurricane deck at the time, and saw the danger about the time his pilot first discovered it. There is, then, but one cause which produced this collision, and that is on the part of Mr. William Williamson, the pilot of the Kentucky Home, in answering what he supposed to be a signal from the Telegraph No. 3, and acting accordingly, when he knew it was an unusual or wrong signal. All the consequences—such as placing himself out of his proper place, the near approach of the boats to a collision before discovery, and the collision itself—proceeded from and are subject to this error; and, for this "inattention to the duties of his station" (it being an error of judgment, wherein others, no doubt, would have done the same thing, under the same circumstances), and considering the loss of time and expense he has been at, attending to this investigation, we suspend his license to act as a licensed pilot for thirty days from this date.

WE took the premium over all other steamers at New York, on FINE HATS, we keep none but the finest quality on hand. This is a mistake. We are making a beautiful silk hat, and also one at $5, which are just as "stylish" as the finer qualities.

HAYES, CRAIG, & CO.

THE ONLY COMBINATION OF COMFORT AND ELEGANCE—In the way of Hats is that superb dress Beaver made by HAYES, CRAIG, & CO., and upon which they took the premium at the World's Fair. While it is the most elegant Dress Hat of the season, it is as light and airy as the gossamer.

It is now in receipt of a large supply received and for sale by HAYES, CRAIG, & CO.

EVENING BULLETIN.

FRIDAY EVENING, AUG. 24, 1855.

GREAT IMPORTATION OF CATTLE INTO KY.
Robert A. Alexander, of Woodford, Ky., has written a long and most interesting letter to the Ohio Farmer, giving an account of a recent visit to all the short-horn herds of England.—From it we learn that before leaving England Mr. A. shipped for this country 48 head of the best of short-horns and 22 South Down sheep. The most of these are destined for his fine farm in Kentucky. Mr. Alexander is the largest importer of short-horn cattle in America. Every year he spends several months in England to attend the Local and National Fairs, and find the best animals, which he purchases, no matter at how great cost.

A man named James Leahey was killed at St. Louis on Monday at a liquor saloon by its proprietor. Leahey was the first assailant.

In the same city and on the same night, a man named Bliss killed Victor Abrahams. Bliss surrendered himself.

[Correspondence of the N. Y. Courier and Enquirer.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.

Mr. Browne, manager of the Agricultural division of the Patent office, will sail for Europe in the steamer of the 5th September. The object of this visit is the collection of seeds, and the procuring of information upon several agricultural interests successfully prosecuted in Europe, but hitherto entirely neglected here, though believed to be well adapted to our soil and climate. Among these pursuits is the planting of sea-cane, for the protection of the shore against the washing of the sea. It has been carried to great perfection in Holland, where, to use Dryden's figure, the country has been fished up from the sea. There are portions of the United States which would derive the highest advantage from the successful culture of this shrub. Attempts have heretofore been made to introduce it, which have failed principally from the want of information on the methods pursued. A great benefit would be conferred upon the country should this renewed effort, under the auspices of the government, succeed.

Mr. Browne's tour will be extended to Poland, and it will occupy some 10 or 12 weeks. Already an agricultural department has been established by the authority of the Executive, while the subject has been for years under earnest deliberation in Congress. The appropriations have rapidly swelled in amount, and a large item for deficiencies will be presented at the next session, and duly responded to.

The elections for members of the next House are now so nearly complete, that we can discern the state of parties, so far as can be learned from their associations and recognized public position. The States which have yet to elect are Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, and Maryland.

The House will be a congregation of factious. There will be Whigs and Democrats, Know-Nothings, Freesoilers, Abolitionists, Hard-shells, Administration men and Softs and Independents and Dependents, the latter much more numerous than their opposites. The regular administration force will be 75; the united opposition 159. But there is no possibility of a union which will combine more than a bare majority of the whole House—namely 118 members. Upon the question of sustaining the Nebraska law, the best calculation gives the result of ayes 103, noes 131—majority 28. But as the Senate stands ready to veto any such movement of the House, the passage of a bill of repeal would be only a preliminary proceeding to a long and fierce contest between the representatives of the people and the Executive with its patronage, and the Senate with its long terms.

As no party will be able to command a majority, the organization of the House must depend wholly upon success in combination, and it need excite no surprise if a struggle should occur as long and exciting as that which convulsed the country in 1849 and '50.

We hear, with modified interest, that Mr. Dodge, General of Militia, has made renewed overtures for the purchase of Cuba. This I think not at all improbable. Cuban annexation is too good a card to be relinquished merely because the game has been played out. It is to be used in managing the more fiery Southern members through the stormy scenes of the next Congress, and in the dying hours of the Administration. Though the whole subject is indefinitely postponed, many a patriot will find it convenient to mouth over it as a thing to be speedily accomplished.

INSPECTOR.

PRODUCTIVENESS OF THE LAKE SUPERIOR MINES.—Below we give the estimated amount of copper that will be produced in the Lake Superior mining region for the year 1855:

Cliff Mine about	1,500
Minnesota Mine about	1,000
North American Mine about	500
Copper Falls do do	250
Northwestern do do	200
Northwest do do	60
National do do	60
Rockland do do	100
Toledo do do	150
Norwich do do	50
All other mines, say	230
Making in all	4,100

Copper at the mines is $400 per ton, making a sum total of one million six hundred and forty thousand dollars against an expenditure of about $2,000,000. This leaves a deficit against the copper mines of $360,000.

We are safe in saying, from knowledge of all the facts relative to that country, that the next year the copper mines will more than pay their expenses—an event unparalleled in the mining history of the world, taking into account the short time they have been worked, and the amount of capital invested.—Chicago Press.

The enterprise of African colonization, says the Philadelphia Ledger, "in whatever point it is viewed, is in fact full of interest, and deserving of attention." Whether as politicians, philanthropists, or Christians, the cause ought to receive their assistance, as its object is to abolish the slave trade, to civilize Africa by every practicable means, and to extend Christianity. To the philanthropist, the history of the Republic of Liberia is replete with interest. Acquired by purchase, guaranteed by treaty, and governed by justice, it shows the bright result in increased prosperity in itself, and in a rapid extension of friendly relations with the natives. To the Christian, it gives, in the public, an evidence of the successful, established and beneficial effects of Christianity, and it points out the means by which that great blessing may be extended to the thousands and millions of a mighty continent. To the politician, it affords evidence of a favorable experiment, which proves that the Africans, if treated with justice, and placed in a situation in which they are free to act, not only govern themselves, but extend friendly relations with those by whom they are surrounded. It also points out a means which, if steadily pursued, will destroy the foreign slave trade.

We are always delighted to hear from our charming correspondent Dora, whether she writes from Bardstown or Chicago:

To the Editors of the Louisville Bulletin:

CHICAGO, August 25.

GENTLEMEN: After a month of pleasant vagaries and delightful loiterings in the dear familiar places of my Kentucky home, I am again in this busy, "progressive" metropolis. I am almost provoked at the wondrous changes in my absence, indignant at the magic improvements of a few weeks. It is quite another city to the home I left, and I shall have to learn it again.

But the lake, the beautiful silvery lake is still the same; and the waves still chant their rich, deep melodies, and what sweeter welcome, than that wailing, winning music! I love this biliary lake, with its glossy, crystal surface, and the soft, half-sad murmurings of the waves. Sparkling and basking in the glory and splendor of the sun-rise, it is a scene of brightness that charms more each view. But it is in the golden twilight-hour, that I love to wander to the lake-shore—the hour when the whole sheet of water is "paved with gleams of sun-set and of moon-rise."

The sunlight fading away, but crimsoning and irradiating the sky in the west, a pale moon, with the bright evening star in its lustrous beauty, what splendor reflected in this grand mirror! And then the wild, sweet music of the waves, bringing now happy, glad thoughts, now sad, tearful memories. Oh! I love the lake-shore. The brightest, loveliest, and balmy evening of this week we drove on the delightful plank-road to the suburban residence of a genuine, chivalric Kentucky gentleman, Col. H. What pleasant, charming faces and what a pretty, cheerful home! The handsome mother, elegant and dignified, yet dispensing hospitality with the sweetest, gentlest kindness; the dark-eyed daughter, graceful and lovely; the good Kentucky-loyal Colonel himself—it was as bright and happy a tableau vivant as one could wish to see. And then, too, it made me think of that ever dear distant home, where the sweet spirits of love and cheerfulness and hospitality preside over the family circle. Chance glimpses of pure home-happiness like this made us sigh for some sweet little abode of our own. So one evening, into our usual promenade, we ventured in an "intelligence office" to seek for a "house to rent." The agent, with more usual volubility, considerably heightened by foreign accent, told of a love of a cottage, with a green yard and spacious garden, and roses and vines all around, just a pleasant walk for "shopping"—house quite new—owner going further West—resolved to sell at a sacrifice—indeed, the price a mere nominal thing, too small to be mentioned—would suit us exactly. Allured by the "magnificent mystery" of cottage life and exhilarated by the evening air and rapid walking, we thought so too. Very kindly, with the most disinterested politeness imaginable, our agent offered horse and buggy that we should drive to this terrestrial paradise. Near enough, to be sure, to walk, but then a drive here is so delightful.

Next morning, very cold, but nothing daunted by chilly winds and clouded skies, we started en famille in a nondescript vehicle for our prospective residence. Such a pretty vision of a cottage-home, green and shady and cool and flowery in summer, and cosy and warm and cheerful in winter. Such a gem of architecture, too! The prettiest of verandahs, all covered with clustering vines and sweet-perfumed flowers; the brightest little parlor; a very fairy's boudoir was my "castle in the air." Well, after such a long drive, we drew up in front of the cottage. Oh! not the home I had begun to love. Mirabile risu—what a place! Imagine three close, low little rooms, built as compactly as possible, with the utmost possible economy of space and material. Planks still rough and unpainted. No fence, neighborhood of similar houses. The proprietress, a fair daughter of Erin, left the dinner she was so assiduously preparing, to set forth the charms of this incomparable cottage. "The bed-room, was there ever such a beauty?" And she complacently moved the cradle, that we might pass to the dining-room and kitchen, both included in one. "So convenient, everything served from stove to table instantaneously." And the bed-room, the bed-room, the bed-room, was there ever such a beauty?" And she comingly moved the cradle, that we might pass to the dining-room and kitchen, both included in one. "So convenient, everything served from stove to table instantaneously."
